TODAY & TOMORROW

MAY 10-23, 1986

ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED RUSH — TIME DATED

In order for Materiel Management to meet fiscal closing deadlines and to ensure that orders on funds expiring June 30, 1986 reach Accounting in time, departments are asked to observe these deadlines:

• Fri., May 23: Final day to receive equipment orders over $5,000 on expiring funds;

• Fri., June 27: Final day that Storehouse will accept requisitions for stock items chargeable to 1985-86 funds. Departments are reminded to consider their needs carefully and to process orders well in advance of the June 27 deadline to ensure charges against the 1985-86 funds.

If you have mildly elevated blood pressure and do not want to depend on drugs to lower it, the Mild Hypertension Project is looking for you. The project is comparing drug and non-drug approaches to treating hypertension. If you are between the ages of 18 and 59, have mildly high blood pressure, and would like to participate, contact Carol Bailey-Wood or Barbara Biro at x65446.

UCSF researchers at the Northern California Occupational Health Center at SFGH are looking for volunteers who have had splenectomies—surgical removal of the spleen—for a new study on the occupational, environmental and nutritional effects on genetic material in the body.

The effects of these factors on the body are much more easily studied in a person without a spleen since the spleen removes potentially damaging material from the body and leaves no traces. The accumulated effects of nutritional and environmental factors can be better monitored for their potentially toxic effects and cancer-causing properties in splenectomized patients.

A splenectomy register will be established at SFGH as part of the study, according to Charles Becker, MD, professor of medicine and chief of occupational medicine at SFGH. Interested individuals and referring physicians should call 821-5000.

Academic Senate members were updated on the activities of the UCSF Faculty Welfare committees during their February meeting. Marvin Siperstein spoke on the new provision of free life insurance for up to $50,000, campus houses available for rent and expansion of the UCSF faculty counseling program to include the entire UC system.

In other Senate news, Selna L. Kaplan, professor, pediatrics, and Devron H. Char, professor, ophthalmology, have been elected at-large members of the Committee on Committees for three-year terms beginning September 1.

Academic Senate members in the School of Medicine are reminded that nominations now are open for members of the Council of the Faculty. Three members are elected annually to serve for two years. No member may serve more than five consecutive years, and no more than two members from one department and its divisions may serve simultaneously.

Nominations are due in the Academic Senate Office, Box 0764, by Friday, May 23. For further information call x61307.

The next meeting of the Academic Senate will be on Tuesday, June 10, at which time the Faculty Research Lecturer and the winners of the Distinction in Teaching awards will be announced.

Chauncey Leake's poetry epitomizes a man who understood the simple joy of living. This year, the entire campus community is invited to celebrate life at Chauncey Leake Day on Thursday, May 29.

The day's festivities will begin at 11:30 a.m. in front of Millberry Union with a "recycle relay race." Several teams from various departments on campus will hot-foot it around campus and finish the race in Saunders Court. In keeping with the spirit of the late Dr. Leake, who was known to pick up litter on campus nearly every day, team members will pass trash bags instead of batons.

A picnic lunch will begin in Saunders Court at noon with entertainment by the UCSF Marching Band. Campus employees will sell bedding flowers and plants in honor of Leake and his campus beautification efforts.

To celebrate Leake's academic achievements, Paul A. Janssen, MD, president and director of research, Janssen Pharmaceutica, Belgium, will present the Leake Lecture, entited "Strategies for the Control of Infectious Diseases in Developing Countries," from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in Cole Hall.

An invitational reception will follow the lecture at the Faculty/Alumni House.

Janssen's discoveries in medicinal chemistry and pharmacology have led to 100 patented drugs, including antipsychotic, analgesic, antiparasitic, antifungal and antidiarrhea drugs.

Leake Day honors the late UCSF pharmacologist and humanitarian for his superb leadership as a scientific statesman and outstanding contributions to the pharmacological sciences and literature. Leake established the UCSF Department of Pharmacology in 1928. He left the campus in 1942, but returned 20 years later to coordinate the growing research and training programs for medical students. He died in 1978.

UCSF's Yuet Wai Kan, MD, and Ira Herskowitz, PhD, have been elected to the prestigious National Academy of Sciences.

Kan is professor of medicine, laboratory medicine, and biochemistry/biophysics, and head of the Division of Genetics and Molecular Hematology. Herskowitz is professor and vice chair of biochemistry/biophysics and head of the graduate group in genetics.

Kan, who also is the Louis K. Diamond Professor of Hematology and a Howard Hughes Medical Institute investigator, is a world leader in the application of molecular biology to human genetics. He is known for his contributions to the understanding of the molecular defects in two genetic abnormalities involving red blood cells—sickle cell anemia and thalassemia. He has applied these findings to the detection in utero of these inherited blood disorders.

He was responsible for developing a method of prenatal diagnosis of sickle cell anemia by direct analysis of DNA obtained from fetal cells in amniotic fluid.

Herskowitz, codirector of the Weingart Program in Developmental Genetics at UCSF, is widely recognized for his

A symposium and dinner honoring Melvin M. Grumbach, MD, on his stepping down as chair of the Department of Pediatrics, will be held on Friday, May 23.

The symposium, entitled "Trends in Pediatrics," will be held in Cole Hall from 1:30 to 4 p.m. An introduction by Dean Rudi Schmid will be followed by:

• "Future Directions in Pediatrics." Henry Nadler, MD, dean, School of Medicine, Wayne State University, Detroit;

• "Future Training of Pediatric Academicians." Joseph B. Warshaw, MD, professor and chair, Department of Pediatrics, University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, Dallas; pioneering research in microbial genetics, which has led to major discoveries in the genetics of yeast and bacteriophage lambda, a bacterial virus. His research with phage lambda has led to a comprehensive view of how the life cycle is regulated.

NEWS BRIEFS

He also has been studying the genetic and molecular basis for cell specialization in yeast, in particular the basis for specialization into "mating" types, or "sexes." This is a key question in developmental biology. His research led to the discovery that the process in certain strains of yeast is mediated through a simple rearrangement of genes in the yeast genome. In one position, such genes can be expressed, but in other positions the same genes are silent.

With the election of Kan and Herskowitz, UCSF now has 13 faculty who are members of the National Academy of Sciences: C.H. Li (1973), John Clements and Rudi Schmid (1974), Manuel Morales (1975), Walther Stoeckenius (1978), J. Michael Bishop (1980), Bruce M. Alberts (1981), Richard J. Havel (1983), William J. Rutter and Harold E. Varmus (1984), Herbert Boyer (1985). In addition, the late Julius Comroe, Jr., was the first UCSF faculty to be elected in 1961. Election to the Academy is one of the highest honors that can be awarded an American scientist or engineer.

The campus will hold six preview showings of the top winners of the John Muir Medical Film Festival from Wednesday to Friday, May 28 to 30, noon to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. in Toland Hall.

One of the top winners is the series hosted by UCSF's David Watts, called "Health Notes," shown on KQED-TV, Channel 9. The show is underwritten in part by UCSF. In addition, David Watts Production took honorable mention in the safety division for "Earthquake Preparedness."

The preview showings are sponsored by CAL and the UCSF Tours and Speakers Bureau.

The film festival, held every other June since 1976, is the only festival for health films in this country. This year's festival will be held the week of June 16 in Walnut Creek.

Half-price Millberry Union spring memberships for faculty and staff will be on sale for $21 beginning Thursday, May 15, from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Millberry Central Desk. The memberships are valid through June 30. For further information call x62035.

Guillemin, MD, PhD, research professor and director, Laboratories for Neuroendocrinology, Salk Institute, La Jolla;

• "Impact of Molecular Biology of Medicine." William J. Rutter, PhD, UCSF Hertzstein Professor of Biochemistry; director, Hormone Research Institute.

A reception will follow the symposium in the Millberry Union combined lounges. An invitational dinner-dance will be held that evening at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Professor and chair of pediatrics since he came to UCSF in 1966, Grumbach is recognized as an outstanding educator, investigator and clinician. Under his leadership the department achieved international recognition as a major center of research and clinical excellence. Grumbach was named to the UCSF Edward B. Shaw Chair in Pediatrics in 1983.

Grumbach's work in pediatric endocrinology, with collaborator Selna Kaplan, MD, has focused particularly on hormonal, neuroendocrine and genetic regulation of and influence on growth and development of the fetus and children of all ages. The clinical applications of these studies have had an important bearing on the diagnosis and treatment of short stature and other growth disorders and pubertal abnormalities.

Albert L. Jones, MD, a world leader in the study of the liver and intestinal tract, has won the 26th annual William S. Middleton Award—the Veterans Administration's highest scientific honor.

Jones, UCSF professor of medicine and anatomy and associate chief of staff for research and development at the VAMC, San Francisco, was honored for more than 20 years of pioneering research on how liver cells carry out their many vital functions, and on how the gastrointestinal tract defends itself against infection, inflammatory diseases and cancer. His studies on how the liver regenerates may lead to important advances in the field of liver transplantation.

Established to honor the VA chief medical director, who served between 1955 and 1963, the Middleton Award is given to a VA physician-scientist for outstanding achievement in biomedical research.

UCSF is one of six institutions chosen to share $60 million over five years for research in the area of structural biology, the Howard Hughes Medical Institute announced this week.

The funds will speed the application of experimental approaches common in physics to the understanding of biological and medical problems. In structural biology, the fundamental problem is the relation of structure to function, from the atomic level up to the cellular level. Tools such as x-ray crystallography, nuclear magnetic resonance, computer graphics, mass spectroscopy and particle accelerators will be employed in studies of the primary structure of cells, proteins and genes.

In the first year of funding, the Hughes Institute will spend $3.6 million at UCSF, to be used for research, the purchase of new, state-of-the-art equipment and renovation of laboratory space.

One of the main pieces of equipment to be acquired by UCSF is a specially designed intermediate voltage electron microscope, due to be installed in August. According to project leaders John Sedat, PhD, associate professor, and David Agard, PhD, assistant professor, biochemistry/biophysics, the instrument will be the first such microscope designed specifically for three-dimensional analysis of thick biological specimens, that is, specimens about ten times thicker than conventional electron microscopes can handle. This is crucial for looking at structures as large as chromosomes, Agard said.

Fred Friendly, the creator of the highly acclaimed PBS TV series "The Constitution: That Delicate Balance" will present the fifth annual Milo E. Rowell Memorial Lecture at the invitational faculty dinner on Wednesday, May 28 at 6:30 p.m. at the Centre Plaza Holiday Inn, Fresno. Friendly will discuss "Managing Our Miracles: Health Care and Ethics in America."

Friendly and a prestigious panel of experts in medicine, law, theology, philosophy, journalism and government will address the medical and ethical issues of malpractice litigation, confidentiality in the doctor/patient relationship and the high cost of aging.

Former president of CBS News, Friendly is the Edward R. Murrow Professor Emeritus of Broadcast Journalism at Columbia. He first joined CBS in 1951 and produced with Murrow the critically acclaimed TV series "See It Now."

The Milo E. Rowell Memorial Lecture honors the late Fresno community leader, who helped establish the UCSF/Fresno-Central San Joaquin Valley Medical Education Program in 1975. A member of a pioneer Fresno family, Rowell spent most of his life as a practicing attorney, but maintained a longstanding interest in improving health care in the Valley.

HONORS & AWARDS

Alexander R. Margulis, professor & chair, radiology: Will be awarded Karolinska Institute's highest distinction, an honorary Doctor of Medicine degree, for his major contributions to the radiology profession, at a ceremony in Stockholm on May 29.

Guenter B. Risse, professor & chair, history & philosophy of the health sciences: Invited speaker, International School of the History of Biological Sciences, Fifth Course on the History of Malaria, WHO, Ischia, Naples, June 24-July 3.

Lawrence H. Pitts, associate professor, neurosurgery; chief, neurosurgery, SFGH: Elected chair, Joint Section on Trauma, American Association of Neurological Surgeons & Congress of Neurological Surgeons; appointed to the executive committee on trauma, American College of Surgeons.

Henry J. Ralston, III, professor & chair, anatomy: Elected president-elect, American Association of Anatomists.

PUBLICATIONS

Charles J. Epstein, professor, pediatrics & biochemistry/biophysics: Author, The Consequences of Chromosome Imbalance: Principles, Mechanisms & Models (Cambridge University Press, 1986).

Guenter B. Risse, professor & chair, history & philosophy of the health sciences: Author, Hospital Life in Enlightenment Scotland: Care & Teaching at the Royal Infirmary in Edinburgh (Cambridge University Press, 1986).

Michael P. Federle, professor and chief, radiology, SFGH; Michael Brant-Zawadski, associate professor, radiology: Editors, Computed Tomography in the Evaluation of Trauma (second edition) (Williams & Wilkins, Baltimore, 1986).

Roger Boles, professor & chair, otolaryngology: Elected president, American Board of Otolaryngology; elected American Board of Medical Specialties representative on the Accrediting Council for Continuing Medical Education.

Robert D. Gibson, associate academic vice chancellor, student academic affairs; lecturer, School of Pharmacy: Appointed American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy representative on the board of directors, American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education.

Edwin F. Rosinski, professor, medical education: Appointed external evaluator, School of Medicine, University of Auckland, New Zealand.

Charles A. Gooding, professor, radiology & pediatrics; executive vice chair, radiology: Elected to the board of directors, Society for Pediatric Radiology.

John Imboden, Jr., assistant professor, medicine; Rosalind Russell Scholar: Awarded a Pfizer Scholarship for $150,000 for three years to study better treatment of rheumatoid arthritis and lupus erythematosus.

Philip D. Darney, associate professor, ob/gyn & reproductive sciences; medical director, Family Planning Clinic, SFGH: Elected chair, National Medical Committee, Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

APPOINTMENTS

Sally Clarkson: Appointed a Rosalind Russell Scholar. An assistant clinical professor of medicine, she works with Ira Goldstein in the Rosalind Russell Arthritis Research Laboratory studying the normal biology of a cell receptor involved in inflammation. She completed her rheumatology fellowship at Cornell and her residency training at Rockefeller University.

Mardi J. Horowitz, professor, psychiatry; director, Center for the Study of Neuroses: His book, Stress Response Syndrome (2nd edition) (Janson Aronson, NY, 1986) was the featured main selection of Psychotherapy and Social Science Review.

IN MEMORIAM

Henry Neufeld, '26 School of Medicine. A Concord physician and surgeon, Neufeld retired from family practice in the mid 50's when he was afflicted with arthritis. He entered the field of psychiatry and later joined the State Department of Mental Health and Hygiene and worked at state hospitals in Stockton and Atascadero.

Lina D. Murasheff, '50 School of Nursing. A pioneer in Navy nuclear medicine programs, she was a commander in the US Navy Nurse Corps and served 25 years, including tours of duty in Japan and Newfoundland and US stations in Virginia, Florida, Nevada and California.

Richard J. Bartlett, clinical professor, medicine, since 1985, he came to UCSF in 1961 as a fellow in gastroenterology. President of the UCSF Association of Clinical Faculty from 1984-1985, he was a former chief of staff and president of the board of trustees of St. Francis Memorial Hospital. In his spare time Bartlett served on the board of directors of the SF Merola Opera Program helping a number of young singers with their careers. Memorial contributions may be made to the St. Francis Foundation, the American Lung Association of California or the Merola Opera Program.

Helen Rhoades, administrative assistant in the Department of Nursing Services at LPPI from 1973-1983. She received the Chancellor's Special Performance Award in 1981.

How does one effectively teach medical students? For the first time the School of Medicine will hold courses and special one-hour sessions on just that. The types of teaching courses and sessions and the best times for them to be held will be determined by a questionnarie to be filled out by interested faculty members, students and others. For a questionnaire contact Barbara Gastel, x65168, or visit room S 224. Those filling out questionnaires will be given first choice of courses.

San Francisco's water fluoridation policy, in existence since 1952, soon may be placed on the ballot.

UCSF's Department of Dental Public Health and Hygiene is sponsoring a conference for community and health care leaders on "Fluoridation 1986: Issues and Strategies for San Francisco Community and Health Care Leaders" on Friday, May 16, from 8:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Toland Hall. The conference will address current facts, issues and strategies surrounding this public health measure.

For further information call x65802.

All UC employees who are active PERS members are encouraged to nominate candidates for a representative position on the PERS Board of Administration. The position is for four years beginning January 1987.

Procedures for becoming a candidate are available in the Personnel Office, Benefits Section, LH 150, x61843. Nomination petitions must be received no later than Tuesday, May 27, 1986 in the Office of the PERS Board, P.O. Box 90102, Sacramento, CA 95809-0102. The PERS representative election will be held sometime in the fall.
